

From the St. Louis Business Journal:

<https://www.bizjournals.com/stlouis/news/2021/07/28/legal-software-provider-lexicon-names-new-ceo.html>

Legal software provider Lexicon names new CEO

Jul 28, 2021, 2:25pm CDT

St. Louis-based legal software and services provider Lexicon has tapped a veteran lawyer to head operations.

The firm had named Dan Cuneo as its CEO. The legal technology company provides management software for law practices. Scott Brennan had previously been Lexicon's chief executive, according to his LinkedIn profile.

Cuneo joins Lexicon after having been client development, affiliates and acquisitions partner at St. Louis-based domestic litigation firm Cordell & Cordell.

"Having direct experience working with Lexicon comes from my tenure at one of the country's largest family law firms – which also happens to be Lexicon's biggest customer," Cuneo said in a statement. "Lexicon's expertise lies within its documented ability to enable law firms of any size to increase efficiencies and take in more revenue. Thereby,

LEXICON

Dan Cuneo, CEO of Lexicon

The announcement of Cuneo as Lexicon's new CEO is one of several appointments this week by the software firm. The company also said it has named Jes Coffey as its director of human resources. Coffey joined Lexicon in September 2020 as HR business partner. Daniel Meyer has been tapped as Lexicon's director of finance, a promotion from his role of accounting manager. Meyer has worked at Lexicon for four years.

Lexicon, headquartered in Maryland Heights, has 133 employees.

Nathan Rubbelke

Reporter

St. Louis Business Journal

